Dynetics Given Notification of GSA OASIS Large Business Prime Contract

HUNTSVILLE, Ala., July 1, 2014 – Dynetics, a provider of high-technology products and services, has received notification from the U.S. General Services Administration (GSA) that it will be awarded contracts in the One Acquisition Solution for Integrated Services (OASIS) Unrestricted Pools 1, 4, and 6 in addition to the OASIS SB award in Pool 6.

“We appreciate the opportunity to provide services in these three unrestricted pools,” said David King, Dynetics’ president. “We have a broad range of capabilities in these areas, which we can provide to existing customers, as well as to new customers that will come to us through OASIS. OASIS core disciplines align well with Dynetics’ core strengths in engineering, prototyping, research and development. In addition, we support a broad range of other activities within the OASIS contract core disciplines, including program management, management consulting, logistics and other scientific services.”

OASIS is a government-wide multiple award, indefinite delivery, indefinite quantity (MA-IDIQ) task ordering contract intended to meet the complex professional services requirements of all federal agencies, including all organizations with the Department of Defense (DoD), the National Security Community and NASA. OASIS is designed to address the full range of service requirements that integrate multiple professional service disciplines, while also providing the flexibility for all contract types, open market materials/other direct costs (ODCs) and pricing at the task order level.

Initial contract terms are for five years, with a five-year option and task orders up to five years in duration. OASIS and OASIS SB are estimated to provide government agencies with up to $60 billion in professional services over the 10- to 15- year period of performance.

"OASIS and OASIS SB [Small Business] are the result of a two-year acquisition development process that involved not only the hard work and expertise of GSA's OASIS team, but also the input of our industry partners," said Tom Sharpe, commissioner of GSA's Federal Acquisition Service, in regard to the announcement. "We know that our customers have been looking forward to these final awards, and it is clear that OASIS is already the solution of choice for many government agencies including the Air Force, which recently committed to using OASIS SB for all its professional services procurements."
